About Island Press

Founded in 1978, Island Press is a research-based printmaking workshop at Washington University in St. Louis that is committed to creating and publishing innovative prints and multiples, educating students and the broader community about print media, and advancing the printmaking field.

In the context of intensive visiting artist residencies, Island Press explores the expansive theoretical and material terrain of the print. The Press is project-driven, tapping into the place where the artist’s creative activity and research intersect with the philosophical underpinnings of printmaking. Experimentation with new modes and technologies is a natural part of this pursuit, resulting in the creation of innovative and ambitious editions in a wide range of media.

A central component of Island Press’ mission is to foster the creative relationships of the printmaking workshop. Visiting artists work in collaboration with the master printer, faculty, and students to create a reciprocal environment for education and research. Artists reap the benefits of numerous dedicated, energetic student assistants to help push to new levels of complexity and originality in their projects. At the same time, undergraduate and graduate students taking part in the development of artistic ideas gain access and insight into both the technical and conceptual challenges that make each artist’s project unique.

Past visiting artists to Island Press include Radcliffe Bailey, Chakaia Booker, Squeak Carnwath, Nick Cave, Willie Cole, Henrik Drescher, Chris Duncan, Tom Friedman, Orly Genger, Ann Hamilton, Trenton Doyle Hancock, Nina Katchadourian, James Siena, Shaun O’Dell, Lisa Sanditz, and Allison Smith, among many others.

Upcoming visiting artists include Beverly Semmes (spring 2016), Dario Robleto (fall 2016), and Michael Williams (spring 2017).
